Una prima impressione

Camelia Apartment in Koukaki, Center of Athens Camelia is an apartment of 127 sq.m. on the 3rd floor of an apartment building in the Koukaki - Makrygianni area, with partial monument view. At the central entrance of the building, there is an archaeological site that includes part of the Themistocleian Wall, giving the property a unique historical value. Makrygianni is a charming neighborhood in the heart of Athens, located near the Temple of Olympian Zeus. Known for its quiet, elegant atmosphere, it features a mix of neoclassical buildings and interwar-era apartment blocks that stand as architectural masterpieces. The area is named after General Ioannis Makrygiannis, a hero of the 1821 Greek Revolution, whose home once stood at the corner of Makrygianni and Athanasiou Diakou streets. It is just a 10-minute walk from Acropolis Station, 250 metres from the Acropolis Museum and 500 metres from the Acropolis archaeological site.
